Vocalist: Paula Johns,

La Chanteuse de Jazz", is an accomplished cabaret and jazz vocalist who hails from Philadelphia. She is often compared to Ella Fitzgerald and other contemporaries of that era. The daughter of a musically talented family, her mother is an accomplished opera singer, and her father a church organist and choir director, it is no surprise that Paula had an early love for music and began studying piano at age 5. She later studied acting at Freedom Theatre and Voice at Temple University. The rest follows a musical journey that has thrilled audiences in clubs and concerts everywhere.
